Horizon Pest Control Presents Saplings to Glen Rock Students

April 18, 2008 (Glen Rock, NJ) – Horizon Pest Control made a special delivery to Anand Chari and his classmates in Mrs. Lau’s first grade class at Hamilton School in Glen Rock on Tuesday, April 15th.

Chari won Colorado blue spruce saplings for his entire class when he entered a drawing sponsored by Horizon at Ridgewood's Super Science Saturday on March 8th. The trees were delivered the week before Arbor Day, so the students could plant them at their school before leaving for spring break during earth week. The students were all jumping for joy to receive the trees and be given the opportunity to plant them at their school as a constant celebration of Arbor Day and Earth Day.

As part of its environmental community outreach program, ECO, Horizon stresses that even pest control companies can protect the earth while protecting health and property.

“Contrary to what most people believe, we are not about killing all bugs!” Bernie Holst Jr., founder of Horizon Pest Control stresses, “Our job is to protect people from the potential damage to property and harm to health that pests present when they enter our homes.”

Horizon discusses many of the beneficial things that insects provide to the environment in their free educational program, “The Good, the Bad and the BUGly”™. This class is tailored to area 1st and 2nd grade classes, who learn about insects as part of their curriculum. Participating classes will have a chance to win free saplings, as well.

If you would like Horizon to present "The Good, the Bad, and the BUGly"™ to your school or organization, please contact Vicki at 201-447-2530 or vholst@horizonpestcontrol.com
