For a World of Green

Don't let our name fool you: We may be a pest control company, but we care about the environment and the future of our planet, too.

We've actually been practicing environmental stewardship before it was called 'Green'. In our industry, they call it Integrated Pest Management or IPM. IPM incorporates the use of routine inspections, monitoring devices and special products — as well as structural, sanitation and cultural changes — to prevent or eliminate pest infestations. When properly implemented and coordinated, IPM can reduce the use of chemical applications and achieve safe and effective results for homeowners and businesses.

Many pest control companies use the phrase IPM, but only the best actually practice it to ensure the highest level of service at the lowest level of risk to your home, family, and community.

Find out how Horizon can implement a truly "green" approach to pest management in your home or business.
